ing-House ex lange Wednesday morning were payable by the St. Nicholas Bank.

Manager Sherer, of the Clearing-House, said this morning that in view of this rule it was the duty of every bank, for its own protection, as well as that of its depositors, to put its exchanges through the Clearing-House as soon as possible. This was the case with checks that came in by mail, or were received before banking hours in the moraing.

If they were for a large amount it was the usual custom for the banks to include them in their Clearing-House about for the day, and if this was not done, and loss occurred, the banks might be held responsible for negligence or lackes.

With regard to the Danforth check, Mr. Sherer said he did not care to express an opinon, a d that what he said merely applied generally. Personally he did not know anything about the matter, for the checks that came to the Clearing-House came tied up in packages, and not opened. The aggregate amounts were merely indorsed on the back of the package.

Cashier Sherman, of the Gallatin National Bank, said: There is no question that the bank which received this check did perfectly right in sending it through the exchanges. It would have been negligent not to do so.

"Any depositor of the Madison Square Bank who suspected the condition of affairs which existed on Tuesday could have taken advantage of the rule in the same way and deposited his check in some other bank in time to get it through the Clearing-House or Water.

affairs which existed on Tuesday could have taken advantage of the rule in the same way and deposited his check in some other bank in time to get it through the Clearing-House on Wednesday. The clearing agent would have been responsible for its payment."

Bimliar views were expressed by the cashier of the Chase National Bank. How Treasurer Danforth learned of the condition of the Madison Square Bank in time to carry out his scheme for recovering the deposit of State funds is a mystery which has not yet been solved. It is hinted however, that a friendly tip was given when the notices were first sent out by the St. Nicholas Bank and that Mr. Danforth was aware of the visit of the Clearing-House Committee to the Madison Square Bank late on Tuesday afternoon.

It is intimated that when the members of the Clearing-House Committee decided to investigate the affaire of the Madison Square Bank, some of the Madison Square Bank, some of the Madison Square Bank affaire of the Madison Square Bank some of the Madison Square Bank affaire of the Madison Square Bank, some of them, who knew of the State's deposit there, were almost sure that the draft for info,000 would be among the Clearing-House exchanges next day, for it was known that Mr. Danforth was in town on Tiesday. They were not at all surprised; Stherefore, when the news came out that the check had turned up and the money been paid.

was considered a duil season in the building trade, there were 199 permits granted for brick and 200 for frame buildings of the brick buildings for this period of 1893 was $323,000. The estimated value of the brick buildings for this period of 1893 was $325,000. The buildings erected for the same period last year are, estimated at $2,010, was period last year are, estimated at $2,010, till for brick and $770,506 for the frame buildings.

In some of the outlying wards—the Twenty-sixth for instance—where houses were being erected in large numbers, were being erected in large numbers, were being erected in large numbers is saud.

In some of the month of July there have only been two or three permits issued.

This falling off of the building trade is looked upon with alarm by contractors and mechanics. At the Building Exchange it is said that there are thousare unable to procure employment, and its even more dubious.

Notwithstanding the failing off of the number of buildings erected this year compared with the statistics from the Brooklyn for this year was increased $18,000,000 over that for 1892.

The reason for the increase was given chiefly as the number of new buildings and the failing off of the buildings rected this year was increased $18,000,000 over that for 1892.

The reason for the failing off of the outlook for the procure employment of the procure of new buildings as the number of new buildings and the procure employment of the procure employment of the procure employment of the procure employment, and the procure employment of the procure employment of the procure employment, and the procure employment of the procure e which have been erected throughout the city.

The mechanics, such as plasterers, bricklayers, lathers, carpenters, &c., who are dependent almost entirely upon the building trade for employment, have flocked to New York, but find little relief, as the supply there, too, seems to be greater than the demand.

The reason given for the falling off in the building trade in Brooklyn is more on account of the high assessment and tax levy on real estate in the city, although it is said that the financial stringency has had something to do with it.

STRANGE PLEA FOR WORK.

Parading the Streets with a Placard Asking Employment.

The means to which men are compelled to resort during the present "hard times" are usually covered from the view of the majority of mankind, and individuals only occasionally catch a glimpse of the real state of things.

A striking illustration of this was preplaced. Some of these had been empired, but enough refuse still remained clinging to the bottoms of the barrels and boxes to give forth an unpleasant odor.

In the street itself all manner of refuse had been thrown. Melon rinds, old shoes, dirty rags, decayed fruit, greasy paper from butchers' shops and miscelianeous garbage and offal joined with the pools of stagnating water in the numerous gutter depressions to poison the air.

Added to these was the natural street accumulation of dirt and refuse from trucks and horse-cars.
